NEW YEAR SALUTATION.

This being our first issue in the new year, and considering the changes and improvements which we have successfully consummated, it may be proper to present to our readers a prospective view of the course which we mean to pursue. The politics of the CHRONICLE, and the matured form of opinion and sentiment which it has adopted, are well known and thoroughly understood. Indeed, so generally has this department of our paper been appreciated, that its leading articles have very frequently been copied by various newspapers of high character, not only in this State, but also in distant parts, and even in the London Times. The name of our political editor is a sufficient guaranty of the soundness of the CHRONICLE's political faith. And it will be in perfect accordance with his views, that the measures, of which we are about to speak, will be advocated. These, though not belonging to the domain of partisan politics, that is, not considered political in the usual acceptance of that word, are nevertheless matters in which our readers have an interest of vital importance.

Clarksville is the natural commercial center of a large extent of country in this State and in Kentucky, rich in agricultural resources and possessed of the most admirable facilities for manufactures and trade. Whatever is advantageous to this city must also promote the welfare of this extensive, fertile and highly favored region. The interests of the city and of the surrounding country are mutual and reciprocal. If more abundant crops are raised in the country, the city, as a mart for the increased products, has a larger volume of trade. If more numerous and larger manufactures are established in the city, there will be a better market for all kinds of country produce. The bonds of our circulation, therefore, embrace a section whose material interests are undivided, and all center in this city. And, in considering these material interests, reference must be had, not only to our own particular section, but also to the relations of this section to the State at large, to the South and to the Union.

Let us notice the points which now most prominently present themselves. 1. The very life of business activity and enterprise in this section depends upon the early establishment of manufacturing, to work up the prodigious supplies of raw materials, with which nature has so liberally supplied us. In Clarksville especially the advantages for the kind of manufactures naturally strike the minds of the most thoughtful observers with great force. Tanneries, factories for making agricultural implements and many similar enterprises must be advocated until they are put into successful operation. We cannot stand idle and indifferent, retrogression will be ruin; progress is our only safety.

2. The present miserable management of the affairs of the poor, of country roads and bridges, and of the public schools must be reformed, so as to put them more directly under the control of those most concerned in their judicious and economical administration. Local self-government in the civil districts must be organized. Instead of bringing district matters to the county seat, and putting them under the centralized control of the county court, we shall urge that they be left to the good sense and practical judgment of the people of each civil district, or the officers elected by them. Such a reform would relieve the people from much of their heavy burden of taxation, as well as put an end to the farcical absurdities so often perpetrated in our county courts. Hence they are, indeed, but farces for which a tax laden people pay entirely too dearly.

3. In common with the entire South this section demands the solution of a most difficult problem which, the presence, in the same community, of two widely different and inharmonious races inevitably forces upon us. In its political aspect the question takes the shape of an amalgamation (for it can be called nothing else,) to which Northern coercion aims to drive us. To blend the two races, not only politically, but socially as well, is now the design of certain politicians at the North. As a political question this infamous measure will be properly discussed, as heretofore, by the political editor in his own department of this paper. But this matter also concerns the material interests of the country generally, and will be discussed apart from its political significance. The philosophy of history and the powerful logic of facts and the experience of mankind will be found of some value in settling this question, as well as the platforms and dogmas of contending parties. It will be seen, perhaps, that kindness to both races, and the salvation and happiness of each, demand that they be peaceably separated; that the voluntary emigration of the negroes and their settlement in African colonies will present a happy, peaceful and profitable solution to this problem. It is aware that to treat any of the foregoing subjects as hobbies would result disastrously, they shall receive only such attention as they deserve. Nor shall we neglect other important features of a good family newspaper. Of one thing at least, we trust we shall be especially careful. The weekly paper is more thoroughly perused than, perhaps, any other reading matter. We hope no article, either original or selected, published in our paper, shall ever contain an allusion, even remotely indecent, which will cause the check of modesty to blush.

We return most hearty thanks to our patrons for their kind encouragement and friendliness in the CHRONICLE in the past. It will be our aim to deserve a continuance of public favor and support. And it is worthy of consideration that our prosperity depends upon the general welfare of our readers. If they succeed and flourish, our interests will be advanced in like proportion. The interdependence of a public journal and the people who read it, is of the closest and most vital nature. Therefore, we sincerely wish our readers a fortunate and prosperous year in 1872. In the tender words of the Irish emigrant, as the ship was rapidly bearing him out of sight of the dear green isle, "Sweet Jassus be wid' ye!"

Our new power press was put up this week and thoroughly adjusted by Mr. Eismenger, of the Cincinnati Type Foundry. It works splendidly in every respect, and is a beautiful piece of machinery. Its weight is about 8000 pounds. This press is capable of making one thousand impressions per hour. We wish to say, however, that printing this issue of our paper upon an entirely new press was something like a trial trip on a new steamboat. It was necessary to experiment a great deal in order to get everything to work as well as possible. Subsequent issues of our paper will be printed much better than the present one.

PERSONAL.—We have been requested to give a word of personal explanation for the benefit of visitors to McCormick's photographic gallery. Upon entering the reception room most persons are struck with the grandeur and majesty displayed in every feature of a full length picture, which one might take to be of some grand old military hero. The costume is military, and the attitude that of one of those chivalric warriors of the olden times. The expression of the face indicates a soul of dauntless courage and a mind of imperial dignity. Many have asked whether it was the picture of the Duke of Wellington, Charles the Great, or Julius Caesar; some have wanted to know if it was not a photographic copy of some portrait of Richard Coeur de Lion by one of the old masters; while others, recognizing the uniform of the Knights Templar in this picture, have been puzzled to understand how so modern a dress could have been worn by one who must have lived in the feudal age, for so much chivalry has never been seen depicted in the countenance of any of our modern heroes. To these one and all, we are requested to say that it is a picture of our friend, Sam'l Caldwell, Esq.

NATIVE WINE.—After all the eggs we had procured for an egg-nogg for Christmas had frozen, we were sorely perplexed to know what we should do for something exhilarating during the holidays, when our amiable lady-friend, Mrs. Goodlette Brown came to our relief and solved the vexed problem by sending us two bottles of grape wine, one made of the Isabella and the other the Catawba grape. We do not claim to be a judge of the fluid extract, but we are confident that we know when anything suits our taste, and this wine made by Mrs. B. appeared to be exactly what our taste called for. We pronounce it No. 1, and we mistake. May her vineyard always prove productive, her cellar always be stored with good things, and may she live many long years to enjoy them, and we to drink to her very good health.

REMARKABLE PIPES were those two presented to us by Mr. Goodlett Brown last week. Many have been the guesses as to the material of which they were composed. But he would be able to see through a half dozen mill-stones, who could name the substance out of which they were made, even if he were given a hundred chances to guess it. They are neat, pretty specimens of handicraft; and each was made out of a quince dried on the tree. One would have been apt to suppose they were made of condensed, solidified buttermilk, as to have imagined that they were manufactured out of any kind of dried fruit. They are so firm and solid in their appearance that many persons have been sure that they were made out of some kind of stone. They can be seen at the CHRONICLE office.

As citizens of Clarksville we are always proud and happy to notice home enterprises. True patriotism shows itself in striving for the good of one's town, State or nation. Our fellow-citizen, Mr. Hood, in his successful efforts to introduce the culture of the grape and the manufacture of wine in this section, deserves the praise and thanks of our entire community. The use of good, wholesome wine, instead of the deleterious compound which we call whiskey, would be a most desirable reform. And no country in the world is better adapted to grape culture than this part of Tennessee. And, since it is an indisputable fact that, in all countries where the vine is cultivated and wine manufactured on a large scale, and consequently drunkenness is diminished. For even the habitual use of wine does not create that maddening thirst for stimulants, which the occasional drinking of whiskey and other fiery liquors generally produces. (The Union and American says.)

Mr. N. P. Hood, of Clarksville, representing the Christianianity of our editorial corps, was kind enough to present us with a quantity of the delicious wine, which we call whiskey, would be a most desirable reform. And no country in the world is better adapted to grape culture than this part of Tennessee. And, since it is an indisputable fact that, in all countries where the vine is cultivated and wine manufactured on a large scale, and consequently drunkenness is diminished. For even the habitual use of wine does not create that maddening thirst for stimulants, which the occasional drinking of whiskey and other fiery liquors generally produces. TOBACCO SALE.—Lyle, Rosington & Co. of Red River Landing, will have a sale of tobacco next Thursday. Herndon, Gold & Co. of the Red River Landing, will have a sale of tobacco on Wednesday, 8th inst.

The negro lad who was shot in the hand, at New Providence, a few days ago, has died from his law.

The number of marriage licenses issued in this county during the year 1871, was 25; to whites 133, to blacks 107. The number issued during Christmas week, 1872, was less than for the corresponding week in 1871.

Mr. J. B. KILBERRY, editor of the Rural Sun called upon us this week, and gave us a cheering account of his success in increasing the circulation and widening the influence of his paper.

AN EXCELLENT CITIZEN GONE.

At half past five o'clock, Saturday morning, Dec. 28th, that estimable man and highly useful citizen, Mr. Peter Peacher breathed his last. He was seventy years of age when he died, having lived a life of well directed energy and enterprise, strict integrity and great usefulness. He was possessed of a noble courage and equanimity which misfortune could not shake. He was the founder of Peacher Mills, in this county, consisting of flouting and wooden mills on an extensive scale, which have given employment to many hands, and built up quite a village. He took a deep interest in all enterprises which had for their object the building up and improving of our country. He was a public spirited man, and labored faithfully and energetically for the general prosperity of the community in which he lived.

Mr. Peacher was a Mason, a member, and the treasurer at the time of his death, of John Hart Lodge, No. 247, at Peacher's Mills. The members of that lodge and the fraternity in Clarksville united in performing the funeral rites at his grave, in the burial-place of the family, where he was interred on Monday last. He has finished and well performed the work to which he was appointed on earth, and has now gone to the temple not made with hands, but fashioned and perfected by the Grand Master above. He has been called from earthly labor to heavenly refreshments. So mote it be.

A good opportunity has been lost to Clarksville and gained to Chattanooga simply on account of a shameful want of enterprise in this city. We learn through a private letter to Mr. L. Bloch, who kindly furnished us the information, that Maj. Adolph Hunnewald, of Switzerland, is about to establish a cotton factory in Chattanooga. The company consists of Maj. Hunnewald, Ruch of Chattanooga, Warner of Nashville, and Hug of Zurich, Switzerland, with Messrs. Hunnewald and Hug as directors. They have purchased the machinery of a factory formerly operated at Culberty, Ga., and will move it to Chattanooga. Maj. Hunnewald was here last summer, and would have located his factory in this city, but was discouraged from the undertaking by the apathy and indifference of our people. The busy looms and spindles of the "Chattanooga Spinning & Weaving Company," (as the firm is styled,) will give business life and activity to another city and not to our own. The fault lies in your own doors, good people of Clarksville.

LITERARY.—We have received from Messrs. Owen & Moore, the Eclectic Magazine and Scribner's Monthly for January. The latter contains a most interesting paper, "New Ways in the West," by H. W. Henshaw, which will be especially entertaining to Southern readers. "How Stanley found Livingston" is graphically related. "Arthur Bonicatti" is continued, and more completely enchants the reader as it progresses. "Victorian poets," is a learned critique. There are several other papers in this number of Scribner, all able and quite readable.

The Eclectic as usual contains the cream of foreign periodical literature. "Dr. Livingstone and his Work" will be a special interest for many readers. We also received last week from the author, through Messrs. Owen & Moore, a copy of "Christopher Crooked," a beautiful book for a holiday present; and it is so elegantly and chastely written and so interesting withal, that it is a very good book to buy and read at any time. It is for sale by Messrs. Owen & Moore, who keep constantly on hand a full supply of the best periodicals, as well as current standard works.

TO OUR FRIENDS.—Having gone to great expense to give our readers a larger and better paper, we would respectfully request all indebted to us, by note or account, to come up, without delay, and make payment. We need the money, and hope this modest appeal will not pass unheeded.

NEBLETT & GRANT.

We send the CHRONICLE this week to many who are not subscribers, hoping that, after an examination and perusal of our paper, they may find it to their interest to subscribe.

FINE DEER.—Jackson & Bro. and J. T. Moore will have some choice beef at their stalls in market this morning. The stock was raised by Mr. G. W. Warfield, one of the best young farmers in this country. This beef is well fattened and extra fine, and all who want to enjoy a juicy steak of it had better be on hand early.

Our carrier, John Bailey, returns his thanks to the patrons of the CHRONICLE for their kindness and liberality on Christmas morning.

J. N. BYERS, the druggist, has secured the services of Mr. Wilcox, of Louisville, in his prescription department. Mr. W. is a gentleman and prescriber, and we gladly welcome him as a citizen.

Our Fire Department will soon have on hand some new hose, which was recently ordered.

Mr. WILLIAM ROGERS, of the 16th Regt. of Cavalry, has since showed us some really fine samples of his tobacco crop, made this year. We have never seen better tobacco anywhere. Rogers is an unusually skillful farmer, and knows how to make fine crops. He prizes his own tobacco, and does not honestly too. Whoever may buy his crop may rest assured that there is no deception in his goods.

Mr. ROGERS, has presented us with some fine samples of grape, bright wrap tobacco. Mr. Jett's present of fine tobacco, and the dried quince pipes, given us by Mr. Goodlett Brown, fixed us up well for Christmas smoking.

The Nashville Republican Banner comes to us now in an entirely new dress of type. The Banner is an exceedingly well printed paper, and contains as few typographical errors as any paper published in the Union.

TAX SALE.—Henry Lyle, tax collector, will sell all the lands he has advertised for the years
